WORLD ANIMAL PROTECTION

An open letter to the next Prime Minister of Australia

World Animal Protection stands with Australians in our opposition to the live animal export trade.

Australia exports millions of live animals every year. Countless exposés, investigations and reports by whistleblowers have brought to light incidents of death and cruelty on board live export ships, at ports of disembarkment and in destination countries.

Time and again, Australians have seen animals suffer brutal conditions and agonising deaths as a result of the live export trade.

This cruelty occurs under the full control of the Australian Government and live export companies.

Australians have had enough. It's time to end live animal exports.

We're calling on the new government to move from live export to the chilled and frozen meat trade, which would protect Australian animals from needless suffering.

Australian animals deserve better and we, the majority who care about animals, demand better.

Signed,

11,500 Australians and counting...
